Manager's Comment

The S&P 500 rose nearly 1% over the first thirty days of October but declined with the market in the Halloween trading session. The approaching Presidential election and mixed results from big tech helped drive market volatility. For the month, all three Indices fell with the Dow and S&P 500 snapping five month winning streaks and the Nasdaq recorded its first monthly loss since July. Treasury yields posted their worst monthly loss since 2023 as yields marched higher. Gold and oil prices posted monthly gains as tension between Isreal and Iran drove a move to safety.

The Castlestone Low Volatility Income UCITS fund moved lower in October. The fund adjusted the following holdings during the month; Citigroup, Chubb Ltd, Marsh & McLennan, Elevance Health, Medtronic Plc, Regeneron Pharmaceuticals, Lockheed Martin, Nike, United Parcel Services, and Prologis. The management team also adjusted the weighing of The London Tunnels Plc to reflect the current trading environment more accurately. These adjustments reduced the Low Volatility's holdings from 86 to 76. Wells Fargo was the fund's top performer in October and the fund's top holdings are Apple, Nvidia, Microsoft, London Tunnels Plc and Amazon.
